How many times has someone told you, “What an interesting life you’ve had! You should write your stories down.” Yes, you should write your memoir, not only to educate and entertain, but also to reflect on your experiences, relive special moments and come to terms with challenging events. “Memories Into Memoirs” will help you start this journey.

We will meet once a week and share our stories under the gentle guidance of Dr. Laurie Rozakis, published author and university professor of English. By the end of the program, each participant will have written at least eight remembrances. Like quilting blocks, these can be assembled to create a manuscript that participants may wish to publish.

Dr. Laurie Rozakis is a writer of the Complete Idiot’s books and an expert on coaching writers. She earned both her Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees from Hofstra University and her PhD from the State University of New York.

“I feel that once a person has learned a couple of skills, it gives them the ability to design and create pieces that speak to them. These skills can be simple, and they still open up great potential for creativity. My students often wear their new adornments the next day, and enjoy the compliments when their co-workers and friends admiringly say, ‘you made that?’”
